

Case Studies

Mudika Ravi on Livelihood

Ravi is the elder son of Yellaiah and Kanakamma of the family, when he took birth the parents had no limits to their joy, after a month he was affected with polio and both of his legs lost energy. Parents found no way to get out of the problem. They cried for their fate and they brought up the girl with much care. Ravi continued his education up to Intermediate only due to the poverty.

NPdO identified Ravi and shared about the CBR program, and the other related issues He became a member in the group, and received much knowledge on the entitlements and the rights of the persons with disabilities and the government policies. He developed good access with society and the local SHG group members on being educated he started analyzing the need and source of the work in the village level, gradually he stepped a head towards success by strengthening his group.

With the assistance of the CBRW he started fighting to receive his entitlements He stood a head to fight for the rights of the PWDs and participating actively in the campaigning, Ravi along with his group members built strong network at village level, He personally got the support from the group for his livelihood, He started a Cycle shop at home to earn his lively hood, Of his kindness and active participation he won many hearts of the village and became busy. As a right of the disable person he is not only fighting for his benefits but also advocating other PWDs about the entitlements and the schemes provided by the government.

He is very much pleased with the CBR program and the inputs given by the team on the communal rights and making him an active supporter for other persons with disabilities.